Angel Bryant

Teacher: Mrs. Johnson

Grade: 4

My name is Angel Bryant. I am in Mrs. Johnson's 4th Grade class. I am so glad and surprised that Mrs. Johnson chose me to be the student of the month for February. What does it mean to be open-minded? To me, it means that I understand that everyone is not the same and I have to realize that other people will have different opinions from mine. In class, I show that I am open-minded when a classmate tells me to try solving a math problem a different way to still get the same answer. I do it and my teacher tells me that the way I did it is another way to solve that problem. Being open-minded is a good thing because we can learn a lot about what we don't know from others. Being open-minded can make us smarter.

Daniel Naves

Teachers: Mr. Cole

Grade: 4

Hello my name is Daniel Naves and I am in Mr. Cole's class in 4th grade. We learned in my class that open-minded is February's Learner Profile Attribute. Being open-minded is very important because you have to respect others and value their ideas and beliefs. I feel very special about being chosen as the student of the month and demonstrating the open-minded profile in my class.

I respect my parents and my sister's beliefs. My aunts and uncles and my cousins' beliefs. I try to respect everyone around me, and if respect them they will respect me.

At school, I also try to respect others, and then they will respect me. I try to be kind to everyone in my class. I help other students in my class and even those that are not in my class. I respect my teachers and other teachers at the Barack Obama School.

Misael Guerra Velasquez

Teacher: Ms. Verene

Grade: 5

Being open-minded means welcoming new ideas, arguments, and information that I may not always agree with. I was selected to be the student of the month because I always try to think about others. I care about what other people think. I do not care about who other people look. Being closed minded to lead to negativity. That is why I am the student of the month.

JaShaun Cole

Teachers: Mrs. Muhammad/ Ms. Vogelfang Grade: 5

An open-minded person knows that others may think differently, but that is okay. I am open-minded for several reasons. At school, I work hard in class and do not get frustrated. I enjoy working with anyone in the class and I do not judge other people. I listen to what others think or what their opinion is. I am willing to learn new things. I try to understand people. I am a good listener. Finally, I always try my best in school even if it is challenging!
