First Villager: We are all poor here.

Second Villager: We have no food to share.

Stranger: Then I will make stone soup.

Third Villager: Stone soup?

Fourth Villager: We've never heard of stone soup!

Fifth Villager: How do you make it?

Stranger: It's easy!
All I need is a fire
and a pot of water.

Narrator: So the villagers made a fire. Then they set a pot of water on it. ----->

Sixth Villager: The water is hot.
Now what?

Narrator: The stranger reached into his pocket
and took out a stone.

Stranger: I'll just put this stone into the pot.

Narrator: After a while, the stranger tasted the soup.

Stranger: Mmmm!
The soup is coming right along.
But it could use salt
and a few carrots.

Fifth Villager: I have some salt!
I'll go get it.

Fourth Villager: And I have carrots!
I'll go get them.

Narrator: The stranger added the salt
and carrots to the pot.
After a while, he tasted the soup.

Stranger: Mmmm!
The soup is coming right along.
But it could use beans
and a few potatoes.

Third Villager: I have some beans!
I'll go get them. ----->

Second Villager: And I have potatoes!
I'll go get them.

Narrator: The stranger added the beans
and potatoes to the pot.
After a while, he tasted the soup.

Stranger: Mmmm!
The soup is coming right along.
But it could use corn
and a bit of meat.

First Villager: I have some corn!
I'll go get it.

Sixth Villager: And I have a bit of meat!
I'll go get it.

Narrator: The stranger added the corn and meat to the pot.
After a while, he tasted the soup.

Stranger: Mmmm!
It's done.
All we need now
are bowls and spoons.

Narrator: The villagers gathered some bowls and spoons.
The stranger put soup
in a bowl for each villager.

All Villagers: Mmmm!
This is the best soup ever! ----->

Narrator: After all the soup was eaten,
the stranger took the stone
out of the pot.
Then he put it in his pocket.

Stranger: Thanks for the use of your pot and fire.
Now, I'll be on my way.
